OPEN FORUM

BRILLE AUTHORITY OF NORTH AMERICA

OCTOBER 29, 2010

Toronto

Introduction

The open forum began at 3:00 p.m. with the introduction of all participants. The group consisted of many transcribers and a few braille readers and teachers.

Frances Mary D'Andrea, chair of BANA's Education and Outreach committee, explained the structure and composition of BANA. BANA Chair Judy Dixon indicated that BANA's decisions are made with broad participation; therefore the decisions are made deliberatively rather than quickly.

Topic 1: Format of Menus

Participants were given a handout containing some examples of different formats for menus. There seemed to be a preference in the group for example 3. Prices on the right margin allow the reader to skim down the page. The hanging indent helps easily move from item to item.

Topic 2: Signage

BANA is working to create a brochure with guidelines for braille sign producers. Participants were asked for their reactions on situations in which there is not sufficient room to braille all of what is in print on a sign, such as on an elevator. In an example like "Main Entrance", should the word "main" be used, or simply the initials "m e"? The consensus was that a substantive word such as Main was clearer than the use of initials.

Correct spacing was also cited as an important factor in clear signage.

In the U.S. contractions are required on braille signage. To assist seniors or others who are still learning braille, the teaching can be tailored so that contractions used commonly on signs are taught.

Next, discussion turned to the example "W.E.B. GRIFFIN SUITE." If there is not sufficient room on the sign to braille this exactly as printed, How should it be shown? Should capitalization be dropped first, or periods, or should words like "suite" be dropped? The problems with each approach were discussed, and the group agreed that for this example, eliminating capitalization was the best first line of defense.

The group also recommended that all signs within a given facility be looked at in relation to one another to ensure consistency/clarity.

Graphic symbols--should a raised star be used, or an asterisk? Participants agreed that a raised star is understandable.

Participants urged care in ensuring that the braille on a sign is not placed upside-down.

Topic 3: Tell It to BANA

This section included discussion of topics generated by the participants. One person urged the elimination of poetry signs—new lines of poetry should simply be started on a new line in braille. It was explained that in literary braille, the poetry sign is used only when it is used in print.

Questions arose about the status of UEB in the US and BANA's position. BANA monitors it by observing committees and receiving updates on the activities of other countries at our meetings. In making decisions, BANA has tried to avoid discrepancies with UEB and other codes currently in use.

The forum adjourned at 4:30 p.m.
